SHORT STORIES OF AMERICA

AN INTERPRETATION OF NATIONAL LIFE AND SPIRIT

Edited with an Introduction by

ROBERT L. RAMSAY, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of English, University of Missouri

This text brings together, for the first time, stories depicting the distinctive life of different divisions of the United States. Under four main groupings—AMERICAN TYPES: Stories of the Frontier; AMERICAN TRADITIONS: Stories of Social Heritage; AMERICAN LANDSCAPES: Stories of the Spirit of Place; and AMERICAN COMMUNITIES: Stories of Communal Consciousness—such writers as Miss Wilkins, O. Henry, Hopkinson Smith, Miss Murfree, William Allen White, Hamlin Garland, Jack London, Bret Harte, and other recognized masters of local color, introduce the reader, with their stories, to each variety of the common American life. With but few exceptions the stories are here used for the first time in a textbook collection. A condensed resumé of the principles of story-writing makes it possible to use this book without any separate textbook of theory. In press.

THE DRAMA

A monthly magazine particularly suited to the needs of those interested in educational uses of good drama.

FOR THE SCHOOL

The Drama is the one magazine devoted to the theatre and the play which gives a large portion of its space to the discussion of high and elementary school problems.

During the past year it has published over thirty one-act plays. It is now running a series of exquisite plays, with illustrations, for young children.

The magazine has a regular illustrated section, devoted to the best work in school production. In this connection it supplies pageants, masques, and all forms of dramatic celebration.

FOR THE TEACHER

The Drama contains most effective one-act plays for reading, regular reviews of the New York and Chicago productions of significance, news of the London, Paris, German, and Russian theatres, trenchant discussion of the trend of the theatre in America.

Yearly subscription to The Drama entitles the subscriber to a full membership in the Drama League of America and to the many benefits which may be derived from this association.

The instruments of the orchestra by sight, sound, and story

A constructive aid for teaching music in the schools

This plan of orchestral instrument study consists of:

18 charts (14" x 22"), showing the instruments in absolute accuracy of color and detail;

Two Victor double-face records (Nos. 35670 and 35671 or 35236 and 35237), which give the tone color of every instrument in appropriate excerpts;

A handbook, giving full description and history of the instruments and their uses by composers.

These three units together offer for the first time in the history of public school music a practical means for the complete study of the instruments of the orchestra
by sight, sound, and story.

SELECTED STORIES FROM KIPLING

Here at last is a book of Kipling stories selected with a view to class-room use. The demand for this book through the years has been insistent, and we were fortunate enough to get Professor WILLIAM LYON PHELPS of Yale to edit the volume. It will be ready in September. Let us send you a copy of the Table of Contents for you to see if the book cannot be used in some of your short-story or contemporary literature courses.

HAWTHORNE POE IRVING

The series of books called "Little Masterpieces" contained these three books. They are edited by Professor BLISS PERRY of Harvard, and we have just reprinted them for educational use. At 50 cents a copy they are most attractively priced. A specimen copy and the contents of all three volumes will be sent to any teacher who can definitely consider them for class use.
